Unit 1 How can we become good learners? 同步测试题

听力材料

A)请听下面8段对话。

1. W: Bob, do you often learn English by reading the textbook?
   M: Yes, but sometimes I learn it by reading storybooks or watching movies.
2. W: Tom, do you usually watch English movies to improve your listening skills?
   M: No. I usually listen to tapes.
3. W: Dave, could you help me with my science homework on the weekend?
   M: No problem. How about Sunday morning? Then we can play tennis in the afternoon.
4. M: Why don't you make some word cards? It's helpful.
   W: But it's boring. Do you have any other interesting ways?
5. W: Your Japanese is excellent, Bill.
   M: Thanks for saying so, Cindy. But I think Tony's Japanese is the best of us.
6. M: What do you think of French, Jenny?
   W: It's hard to learn, because I can't pronounce the words well.
   M: Oh, maybe you can ask Lily for help. She is good at French.
7. W: Do you exercise by running every day, Peter?
   M: Yes. I think it is a good way to keep healthy.
   W: How long do you usually run every day?
   M: For about half an hour.
8. W: Tony, you looked worried. What's the matter?
   M: I'm having trouble learning English. I'm a slow reader.
   W: You can try to read word groups and get the main ideas at first. Don't read word by word.
   M: Sounds good! Thank you. I will try it.

B)请听下面5段对话或独白。

请听第1段材料,回答第9、10小题。

M: What will you do tomorrow morning, Annie?
W: I plan to practice basketball in the park.
M: Oh, are you interested in basketball?
W: Yes, of course. I like to exercise by playing basket-ball. Well, would you like to go with me tomorrow?
M: Sure, I'd love to. But what time shall we meet?
W: Let's meet at ten to nine.
M: OK. See you.
W: See you.

请听第2段材料,回答第11、12小题。

M: Are you good at Chinese, Sally?
W: Well, I don't think my Chinese is bad.
M: Oh? Can you sing any songs in Chinese?
W: Of course. I have learned a few Chinese songs from my aunt.
M: Really? Can you teach me to sing a Chinese song?
W: Sure. You can come to my house at half past six tomorrow evening. I will teach you a Chinese song.
M: Sounds great. I can't wait!

请听第3段材料,回答第13至第15小题。

W: Mike, you look worried. What's the problem?
M: I can't get the pronunciation right.
W: Well, why don't you borrow English tapes from your teacher? You can listen to them at home after school.
M: That's a good idea. But what about new words?
W: You can write new words in your notebook and study them at any time.
M: That might really help! Thanks.
W: Can you understand when people talk to you?
M: No, not always. Sometimes I just don't understand what people are saying.
W: Why don't you join an English club to practice speaking English? The English club meets on Tuesday and Friday.
M: I will go. Thanks for all your advice.

请听第4段材料,回答第16至第18小题。

M: Monica, I heard that you got an A in the chemistry exam last Wednesday.
W: Oh, yeah. What about you?
M: I did much worse than you. I just got a C.
W: I'm sorry to hear that. But you can get good grades if you work hard.
M: Well, you are right. By the way, do you learn chemistry by doing many exercises?
W: No. I often take notes in class and review them after class.
M: Oh, I see. Well, do you often study by yourself or with a group?
W: I often study with a group. I think it is a good way of learning chemistry, because the group members can ask each other questions and then try to answer them. You can try it!
M: Sounds great!

请听第5段材料,回答第19至第22小题。

I'm Larry. Pam is my good friend. She went to England to study English for one summer last year. She said it was a great experience. Before she went to England, she lived at home with her parents. At home, Pam had her own room, but in England she lived with her classmates. At home, Pam's mother helped her do everything, but in England the students had to get ready for school by themselves. Pam had a friend, who is from Australia. Her name is Natasha. She can speak French and English. Pam and Natasha became good friends, and they still write e-mails to each other now. Pam hopes she can go back to England one day.

C)请听下面一段独白。

Hello, I'm Wang Fang, from No. 7 Middle School. I study English by reading newspapers and magazines. My favourite newspaper is First News. It is a weekly newspaper for kids aged 7-14 and it was founded by Sarah and Steve Thomson. It has more than two million readers each week in the UK. You can find all the events in a child-friendly way. You can find interesting news, beautiful photos and true stories. There are also fun games, competitions, etc. It is a perfect gift for kids. You need to pay 1.5 pounds for each copy. You can buy it at any bookstore in the UK.

Recently we've made a survey of Sky English Club. Here are the results. We find that fifty-one percent of the students want to practice their spoken English by using the Internet. Twenty-five percent like watching English movies, which can make their holiday life better. Eighteen percent would like to read more English classics because they are interested in them. Six percent hope that they can learn more foreign culture, such as good manners and western festivals.

As far as I know, it's very helpful to improve English by learning English songs. Maybe we can invite foreigners to introduce good ways to learn songs. I'm sure all of us will have fun in Sky English Club.
