V. One possible version:

Water is very important in our daily life. But some people don't seem to care about it. And water pollution is getting more and more serious. We should do something to protect water. Firstly, don't leave the tap running when we don't need to use water. Secondly, try to reuse water. When we finish washing the clothes, we can use the water to clean the floor. Third, we can have a shower instead of a bath because having a bath can waste a lot of water.

Electricity

Electricity is a kind of energy. It gives us power and flows through wires. We use electricity in hundreds of ways every day. We use it to watch TV, play computer games, see a film and read books at night. Fridges, washing machines and rice cookers can't work without electricity. Electricity is so useful, but where does it come from? Most of the electricity we use comes from power stations. Power stations all over the country make electricity every day.

V. One possible version:

When you are in Beijing, you must be careful in the streets because China and England are different. First, the traffic drives on the right. So you must look at the left first and then right before you cross a street. Second, if you are riding a bike, keep riding on the right side of the road. Third, when the red light is on, stop and wait until the green light is on. Lastly, you should slow down while crossing to crossroads.
